

Hi everyone,

We hope you're doing well and we miss you all. We find ourselves at the start of holy week and while it's a deeply special time for Christians all over the world, we're all faced with the prospect of a different way of life for the time being. There will be no church this week, or any large Easter gatherings. But for all the things we cherish during holy week, the reason and the person who we celebrate doesn't change. What Jesus did for us when he walked the earth and what he did for us when he was crucified can never be pushed aside while a world-wide epidemic takes place. Through Jesus we have hope of great things to come and through Jesus, many, many brave people are throwing themselves into this mess to treat, solve, and comfort people who are afflicted and affected by this pandemic. It will be sad not celebrating this wonderful man together on Sunday but it's comforting to know and see how Jesus's love of humanity shows through in people not only in this moment of crisis but always. Take care and God bless and happy Easter from the Bobb family.

and whoever believes in him shall not perish but have everlasting life.*
