

Finding home base?

Whose' on first?

Being lost & being found?

There's a journey here and we all have one by His Grace. The word for this Tuesday is "JOURNEY".

A journey is so vast, a lifetime. It is the past journey, present journey & the journey yet to be. I can't imagine standing still long enough to see the journey that is just in the moment.

My journeys have existed in two worlds, the Physical (earthly & learned) and the Spiritual (sought after and revealing). The one is day to day, directed by self-decisions and whatever presents itself. The other, by a longing force inside to know something else. Ask the question and be willing to see the answer.

Three questions sent me on a journey, of course for the Spiritual. Perhaps this is where in my messages I say "the quest for today is?" The greatest quest and journey for me began in 1974. Of course there was a great deal of struggle on the path. Falling down was among them and frequently. Questions answered, the path was worth the walk, continued joy in the education and knowledge I have received on my journey and thankful each day that I chose to go on that quest.

Now a new part of my quest & journey has now brought me home to a place as a child, a kid, a teenager that warmth is alive again. Some familiar faces, names, memories, a sort of renewal. Someone at Apostles once said to me that it must have taken a lot for me to just come to church unknowing. No, I was led there and my heart took me through the doors.

I am missing my church community, service, worship, being part of the journey He has for Apostles, and so most of all every one of you.

The quest for the day is the "Journey".

"For I know the plans I have for you," declares the Lord, "plans to prosper you and not to harm you, plans to give you hope and a future."

Jeremiah 29:11

Be well, safe, and blest,

Tory
